

FLOWERS FOR PROFIT.

Floral Fragrance in the Hopkins Gardens at Menlo.

What Timothy Hopkins Could Write About Had He Literary Aspirations

If Timothy Hopkins, Treasurer of the Southern Pacific, and present owner of the old Milton Lapham place at Menlo, would write a book on floriculture, it would be sure to find many readers, says the San Francisco Bulletin. No one can visit his Menlo home without thinking how interesting and how suggestive such a volume might be. "Five Acres Enough" would not be a bad title for such a book, and if the profitable experiments carried on in the big violet patch under the wide-spreading oaks near the house were considered, the title would certainly be true. These are merely suggested literary possibilities, for which there is apparently ample material. At present the visitor can read of the flowers only from the open page of these 200 acres, and a very attractive and interesting page it must be to any one whose interest lies in buds and blossoms.

FLORAL FRAGRANCE.

June is a between-times month in floriculture, yet a recent visitor to Sherwood Hall, as this picturesque country home of Mr. Hopkins is called, saw much to interest and delight. Roses are past their best at this time of the year, violets have ceased blossoming a month since, and chrysanthemums are gathering strength for their autumnal splendor. But there are sweet floral bounties in some of the hot-houses, and without the air is redolent with sweet-pea odors and the pungent fragrance of carnations or clove pink. The peas are now nearly gone. This is the first year that the garden has sent them to the San Francisco market, and how successful the venture has been one may judge by the demand for them at local florists. Speaking dramatically, they were a great hit, being valued not only for their fragrance, but their odd colors. Those who visited the last exhibition of the State Floral Society saw a sample of these garden favorites.

It is doubtful if so many varieties of sweet peas were ever gathered together in this State before. For over four years Mr. Hopkins and his head gardener, Mr. Lynch, have been collecting these. From England, Scotland, France and various gardens of the Eastern States, the seeds came. Such combinations of color and such high-sounding names were never seen or heard of in plant life of the average modest garden hereabouts. Eighteen kinds of sweet peas were flowered this season. All are high growers and trained to trellises. Here the blue and white Princess of Wales and the pink-hued Crown Princess of Russia blossomed side by side in international harmony. An odd pea that did not take very well was a sort of yellow pink. Ladies found that it would not harmonize well with the average costume, and so the novelty was neglected. The Jaynes is a variety from Chicago that has claims to the artistic. In picking, the varieties are kept distinct and tied in brilliant bunches. Most of the picking is done by Chinese, who become very adept to the work.

THE FLORAL CALENDAR.

After the peas, those who watch our florists' windows will see Chinese asters. They will begin blossoming during July and daily many bunches will come here from Sherwood Hall. There are thousands of plants here growing and buds are on them now. After asters will come various bulbs, hyacinths, tulips, tuberoses. The floral calendar for this section so far as cut flowers for the city market are considered, is figured as beginning in autumn with chrysanthemums. After them are roses and violets, and these last through until May. Then come sweet peas, then asters, and the bulb flowers are again ready. A novelty in the way of poinsettias, big waxy leaved flowers of flaming red, will come this year from these Menlo gardens. One long hot-house is given up to them. They have sold here at times for 25 cents apiece. They are natives of Mexico, where they are known also as the Christmas flower. For a table selling this brilliant flower is unique and attractive.

BRILLIANT GARNATIONS.

More carnations have been sent to this market from these gardens this season than ever before. They are grown in hot-houses. They do better there for marketing purposes than outdoors, for there are more blossoms, and the late rains cannot damage them. The brilliant red Portia has been the best market variety. It is very prolific, and the color is one that patrons never tire of buying. Soil in these carnation-houses has to be renewed yearly. In the spring months these hot-houses are heated only by the sun, and during all warm days air has free circulation through them.

QUEEN OF THE GARDEN.

As in most gardens the rose here is queen of all. Over one hundred and fifty varieties and fifty times as many shrubs are growing. In the nursery school just started many of these young roses will be utilized, if other roses fanciers desire to draw on the stock here collected. All the new sorts of Eastern growers are here, but for the cut flower branch of the business only a few standard varieties are relied on. These are kinds that have long been tried by the unerring standard of public favor and market value. It has been found that for forcing in hot-houses for the winter trade the best are Niphetos, Bride, Jacqueminot, Perl de Jardin, La France, Catherine de Mermet and Papa Gontier. The Marechal Niel is grown to some extent. The Marnet is a growing favorite and threatens to supplant in some degree the long popular La France. The Bride is a creamy white rose that is much liked by Eastern rosarians. The Bon Silene is not valued for forcing. There are many new sorts, with qualities superior to those old favorites, but habit and familiarity with the old blossoms work against the kind and profitable reception of the new.

VIOLETS AND CHRYSANTHEMUMS.

Four marketable flowers are here made specialties—the rose, carnation, violet and chrysanthemum. Others are incidental to merely fill in gaps of the floral calendar. Over 10,000 chrysanthemums are growing here now. They comprise all the popular sorts, and along in October their chromatic display will begin. They and the violets are grown out of doors, but the other specialties are shielded by glass most of the time. Occasionally a choice specimen of the imperial Japanese flower is forced indoors, when size more than quality is thought the prerequisite.

One thing about violet culture Mr. Hopkins has learned which other California gardeners may profit by. He has found that violets do their best under the big live oaks that abound on his place. The shade and the leaf-mold soil afford just what the violet needs. Here in all are about five acres of the modest flower that poets never tire of singing about. The plants run in long rows, about two feet apart, close up to the trunks of the oak trees. For over six months of the year these immense beds are a mass of blue and purple and white and the delicate odor is so heavy in the air as to be almost oppressive. The double white Swanley, the double blue Marie Louise, the light-blue Neapolitan, the Czar, and the odd Palmes are the violets grown. The last-named is an Italian variety. It is blue, but on one of the petals is a faint dot of red so small as to be unnoticed except to the practiced eye. These five acres of violets are probably as profitable as any other five acres in the State. Every morning during the season the crop of violet blossoms is shipped to the city. The average shipment is fifty bunches, but some days, as, for example, last Christmas, when 150 bunches were sent, the shipment runs heavier. Head Gardener Lynch is a violet enthusiast, and Mr. Hopkins has to kindly, but firmly repress his inclinations, else Sherwood Hall and all its structural surroundings would be razed to make room for violets. The head gardener has many assistants, but the demands of the cut flower trade are such, and the improvements in hot-houses, etc., so many and necessary, that all are kept very busy. For his new nursery scheme Mr. Hopkins has great plans. Excellence of stock and all flowers true to name he expects to make the cardinal principles of the venture.

SENSIBLE CONCLUSIONS.

Chains of Steel Between Santa Cruz and the City.

The following sensible observations are from a recent issue of the Santa Cruz Sentinel: The bitumen mines of Santa Cruz lie midway between Felton and the coast, high in the hills and north of this city, with an exposure to the sea, and in some instances extending down near to the water line. They are very extensive, covering thousands of acres, and in the possession of many owners. The competition of San Luis Obispo has demonstrated, in the estimation of interested men, the necessity of running a railroad to the mines, and it is understood that the broad-gauge people are of the opinion that it will pay them to extend their road up the coast to the deposits, or to a point below them that can be reached by an all-the-way down grade. We think so. A broad or a narrow-gauge road should be erected along the coast to or near the petroleum deposits. The nearer the better for cheap transportation. The railroad runs right into the San Luis Obispo mines. A road built up the coast to the locality designated will be a section of the coming coast railroad that is destined to link in chains of steel Santa Cruz and San Francisco. Build such a section this year, another one next year, connecting San Francisco and Halfmoon Bay, and a third one the following year, connecting Halfmoon Bay and Pescadero, and the fourth year extending the road to the mouth of the Waddell Creek, running a branch up to the Big Basin timber, and the fifth year extending the main road this way to the petroleum deposits, and in the year 1895 the coast road will be finished from the most popular watering place on the Pacific to the metropolis of California. This is about as soon as we can reasonably hope for a coast railroad, unless some new company can be found with money and courage enough to take the Huntington bull by the horns and wrestle with him in the field of competition. Other papers, San Francisco publications, now pitching into the Southern Pacific people that they may be bought off, may tell you that the road will be here before breakfast in the morning. They have been doing so on paper for these many years.

CITY WATER SUPPLY.

Description of the Spring Valley Reservoirs.

From a paper read before the American Water Works Association by L. Le Conte of Oakland, the following extract is taken:

The city of San Francisco derives its chief supply of water from three large artificial storage reservoirs located in the Coast range of mountains, and are known as the "Pilarcitos," "San Andreas" and "Crystal Springs."

Pilarcitos Reservoir supplies the high-service system, and was built in 1864. Its capacity is 1,080,000 gallons above the dead-water line. Area of water surface, 115 acres; elevation 696 feet above high tide. Dam is earthwork, 95 feet high by 650 feet long. Depth of water at dam, when full, 85 feet. Direct watershed six square miles, and is all mountainous. Average annual rainfall 60 inches. This reservoir is connected with the city by an aqueduct consisting of three tunnels, lined with brick and cement having an aggregate length of 7870 feet; also 8500 feet of wooden flume and 69,336 feet of 30 inch wrought-iron pipe. This brings the water to Laguna Honda service reservoir, capacity 33,000,000 gallons at an elevation of 377 feet above high tide. Just before entering the reservoir the water passes into the screen-house, where it is made to strain through a system of cloth screens, which will be explained in detail further on. The screened water passes from the screen-house into the service reservoir above mentioned. From here a 22 inch pipe delivers the water to the highest part of the city in the western addition.

San Andreas Reservoir supplies the middle service system and was built in 1867. Its capacity is 6,000,000 gallons above the dead water line. Area of water surface, 525 acres, elevation 450 feet above high tide. Direct watershed four and one-tenth square miles, and indirect watershed, drained by feeders, three square miles, and is all mountainous. Annual rainfall, 40 inches. Dam is earthwork, 93 feet high by 640 feet long. Depth of water near dam, when full, 80 feet. This reservoir is connected with the city by an aqueduct consisting of 3,070 feet of tunnel lined with brick and cement, and 64,000 feet of 30 inch wrought-iron pipe leading into College Hill service reservoir, which is 253 feet above high tide, and has a capacity of 14,000,000 gallons. This reservoir also has a screen-house and system of cloth screens similar to that at Laguna Honda, and the water from the storage reservoir is always screened just before its entrance into the service reservoir. The San Andreas reservoir holds all drainage waters, and nothing goes to waste in the wet season. It never has been filled but once. The Pilarcitos and San Andreas co-jointly deliver to the city an average of 9,000,000 gallons per day, derived from 12½ to 13 square miles of drainage area.

Crystal Springs Reservoir supplies the low-service system, and was built in 1877. Its capacity is 3,830,000 gallons above the dead-water line. Annual rainfall, 30 inches. The water service, 500 acres. Elevation, 208 feet above high tide. Direct watershed, 15 square miles, and is mountainous. Dam is earthwork, 60 feet high by 340 long. Depth of water at dam, when full, 46 feet. This reservoir is connected with the city by an aqueduct consisting of 8000 feet of wooden flume, 9000 feet of tunnel and 15,92 miles of 44-inch wrought-iron pipe. This brings the water to the University Mound service reservoir, having an elevation above high tide of 169 feet. Here again the water passes to the screen house, where it is made to strain through cloth screens before entering the service reservoir. The Crystal Springs reservoir catches all the storm waters, and nothing is allowed to run to waste. The aqueduct supplies on an average 22,000,000 gallons per day.

ADMISSION DAY.

Preparations Being Made for the Native Son's Celebration.

The arrangements for the celebration of Admission Day in San Francisco, on September 6th, 7th, 8th, 9th and 10th next, are assuming definite shape and the fortieth anniversary of the State's admission into the Union, will be celebrated in a fitting manner, the Native Sons of the Golden West having entered upon the work in a manner that precludes the possibility of anything but success crowning their efforts. The city will be artistically decorated by experienced decorators and contractors for the building of the triumphal arches will soon be let. The city will don the gayest garb it has ever worn, the sum of $10,000 having already been appropriated for decorative purposes. It is expected that nearly $100,000 will be expended in the proper observance of the day, which amount is already assured. The different Parliors will have headquarters throughout the city, where visitors will be royally entertained. Besides the decoration of the city, the Mechanics' Pavilion will be held in the Pavilion, admission to which will be strictly by invitation.

September 8th having been declared a legal holiday, will give many additional persons an opportunity of enjoying the five day's celebration. Excursion trains will run from all parts of the State and the attendance in San Francisco will be very large.

The festivities will commence on Saturday evening, September 6th by a magnificent display of fireworks, music and competitive drills by the various corps in the Order, in Union Square, which will be handsomely decorated for the occasion.

Sunday the 7th, will be a day of rest preparatory to the festal days following. Sunday morning special services will be held in all of the churches in honor of California's anniversary, and in the afternoon a grand sacred concert will be given in Golden Gate Park, for which a special programme will be arranged, and excellent music discoursed. Monday, September 8th, will be devoted to an exchange of fraternal courtesies by the members of the different Parliors with their friends, and a general welcome to all visitors. In the evening a grand promenade concert will be held in the Pavilion, and everybody given an opportunity of reviewing the pleasing sights. Music will be provided for the entire evening. Tuesday, September 9th (Admission Day) will witness the great parade, which will be, without exception the most magnificent and gorgeous demonstration in the history of the State. At the conclusion of the parade, literary exercises will be held in the Grand Opera House, and an interesting programme offered. The different Parliors will also entertain visitors on that day. A grand rowing regatta will also be held in the afternoon. In the evening the grand ball will be held at the Pavilion and there will also be a grand display of fireworks. Wednesday, September 10th, excursions around the bay will bring the celebration of Admission Day to a fitting close. For the excursion it is expected to secure three large ocean steamers to convey the visitors to the different points of interest.

Internal Ingenuity. Could scarcely devise more exquisite torture than those of which you see the evidence in the face of a rheumatic or neuralgic sufferer. The agonies are the consequence of not checking a rheumatic or neuralgic attack at its source. Hostet's Stomach Bitters has been found by skillful medical practitioners to possess not only remarkable sedative effects, but also those diseases exist, of a tendency to them is exhibited. Surely this potent but safe botanic medicine, bearing too, such high specific sanction, is better than the poisons often employed, but most unsafe, not only in continuance, but in isolated doses. The blood is depurated thoroughly from the rheumatic virus, and the nerves, slightly suppurated, saved from neuralgia and rheumatism by this benign, saving medicine, which likewise exhibits marked efficacy for malaria, catarrhal deafness, dyspepsia, constipation and liver complaint.

Four boys—Con Murphy, his cousins, Patrick and Dan Murphy and John Callahan, were blown up by giant powder near Butte, Montana.

CATARRH.

Catarrhal Deafness—Hay Fever—A New Home Treatment.

Sufferers are not generally aware that these diseases are contagious, or that they are due to the presence of living parasites in the lining membrane of the nose and eustachian tubes. Microscopic research, however, has proved that the cause of these diseases is a tiny, but deadly, parasite, which, when introduced into the system, produces a permanent cure in from one to three simple applications made at home by the patient once in two weeks.

N. B. This treatment is not a Snuff or an ointment; both have been discarded by reputable physicians as injurious. A pamphlet explaining this new treatment is sent on receipt of three cents in cash, or by mail, for 50 cents. Dr. J. H. Burden, 337 and 339 West King Street, Toronto, Canada. Christian Advocate.

Peculiar

In Combination, Proportion, and Process of preparation, Hood's Sarsaparilla possesses the full curative value of the best known remedies of the vegetable kingdom.

Peculiar in strength and economy—Hood's Sarsaparilla is the only medicine of which can truly be said, "100 doses one dollar." Other medicines require larger doses, and do not produce so good results as Hood's Sarsaparilla.

Peculiar in its medicinal merit, Hood's Sarsaparilla accomplishes cures hitherto unknown, and has won the title of "The greatest blood purifier ever discovered."

Peculiar in its "good name at home"—there is more of Hood's Sarsaparilla sold in Lowell, where it is made, than of all other blood purifiers.

Peculiar in its phenomenal record of sales abroad, no other preparation has attained such popularity in so short a time. It

Is Peculiar to Itself.

Peculiar in the originality and effectiveness of its advertising, its methods are continually being copied by competitors.

Peculiar in the way it wins the people's confidence, one bottle always sells another.

REV. DR. RICHARD HERCOT says marriage is a serious thing and thus relates a story: "Father, said a scolded girl, 'Phil loves me and I love Phil. Can we marry?' 'Jennette,' said the father in sepulchral tone, 'is a mighty solemn thing to marry.' 'I know it is father,' responded she, 'but it's a good deal solemn not to.'"

In looking for available material for the Presidential nomination the Democrats have one safe rule to follow, viz: nominate a bachelor. All the bachelors nominated by the Democratic party in the last thirty years have been elected and all the bachelors defeated. In 1884 Grover Cleveland, then a bachelor, was elected and in 1888 Grover Cleveland, a married man, was snored under.

New York City's famous Croton water system is at last completed. Its main feature is a tunnel thirty and three-fourths miles in length and with an average depth underground of one-hundred and seventy feet. It extends in a nearly straight line from a dam in the Croton river, is fourteen feet in diameter and has a capacity of 310,000,000 gallons per day. The hydraulic slope of the tunnel is seven-tenths of a foot to the mile.

At all accounts it would seem that the late census has not only missed many of the inhabitants of certain cities but also a considerable population altogether. The rule required that enumerators take only such persons who were in their districts on the first of the month and a person who should leave a few days after the first without meeting the enumerator would not be counted at all. It is this floating population which has been missed and in Redwood City, the enumerator estimates it to have been at least fifty.

DURING the past month the United States' net public debt crossed the billion point, having been reduced over twenty million of dollars. On June 1st the debt less cash in the Treasury, stood $1,008,858,898 and on July 1st it was $988,175,173. Not counting the cash in the Treasury the debt amounts to a billion and a half but of this only eight hundred thousand dollars bears interest, the remainder being legal tender notes, gold and silver certificates and fractional currency which the government is compelled to issue.

WHEN our friends of the Southern Confederacy get mad they get mad all over. Here is how Ex-Confederate General Horace Lacey refers to Ex-Confederate General Jubal Early: Early presents the sad spectacle of one who has cultivated only the malevolent passions, until, like vipers, they constantly hiss from his lips. Who can look without a shudder of sorrow and pity, mingled with contempt and scorn, upon that aged and bowed form, clothed with cursing as with a garment, pouring upon all who differ with him slander from a mind and heart full of malice, except when full of bad whiskey? For I am told that in the abysmal depths of his present degradation Early is as indifferent to the quality of his liquor as he is to the character of his associates.

FIRE AT MILLBRAE.

The Railway Depot Totally Destroyed Yesterday.

Fire was discovered in the railroad depot at Millbrae yesterday afternoon at ten minutes past 2 o'clock by A. F. Green, Jr., the station agent. He immediately gave the alarm and the residents of the town gathered to his assistance and succeeded in getting the safe, the ticket cases, the telegraph instruments and all movable articles out of the building with exception of those things in the baggage room. Though it could be done to save the structure and in about forty-five minutes it was totally destroyed. The most valuable piece of baggage burned up was a chest of tools worth $75 and belonging to a carpenter named McCormick. The fire caught in one end of the building and is supposed to have caught from a spark from an engine. The total loss is about $350.

JOHN RUSSELL'S DEATH.

It is Due to a Severe Attack of Typhoid Fever.

John Russell, brother-in-law of T. J. McNamara of Redwood City, died at his residence in Menlo Park late yesterday afternoon. He was a native of Ireland, aged 52 years, and had been a resident of Menlo Park for many years. Typhoid fever was the cause of death and he had only been sick two weeks. He leaves to mourn his loss his wife, Margaret, one daughter, Kate, and five sons, Stephen, who is married and resides in San Francisco, and George, Frank, Joseph and Charlie, besides a sister in Gilroy. Mrs. Russell is a sister of T. J. McNamara.

Fate of Charles F. Parker near San Mateo.

Charles F. Parker, an upholsterer of San Francisco, was drowned Sunday afternoon in Donald slough near San Mateo. He had been bathing with a number of boys from the local college and, although he could not swim, persisted in remaining in the water after the others had got out. He said a mud bank into deep water and sank before anybody went to his rescue. The boys thought Parker was ducking his head in fun, but when one of them did attempt to grab the drowning man, the latter caught hold of him and pulled him under the water and it was with difficulty the lad extricated himself. The body was recovered two hours later. Justice of the Peace Mattingly held an inquest and the coroner's jury rendered a verdict of accidental drowning. Parker leaves a widow and two children in San Francisco.

Water Rate Collections.

J. S. Hughes desires it stated that inasmuch as he has been appointed Collector of the water rates for the town, he will commence collections on the first of the month and will visit every consumer at their residence or place of business. It will take him several days to get around the entire town. Persons who desire to use water on their plots at the Cemetery can make arrangements with him in accordance with the new order of the Board of Town Trustees.

AT THE COURT HOUSE.

Maudie Seabury Secures her Divorce.

The divorce case of Maudie Seabury against Forrest Seabury was tried in the Superior Court last Thursday, J. M. Peterson and Geo. C. Ross appearing for the plaintiff. The default of the defendant was entered and the decree of divorce granted. Mrs. Seabury is allowed the custody of their child Arthur and gets $25 alimony. The grounds are extreme cruelty alleged to have been committed at their residence in Oakland and in the presence of Mrs. Agnes Durand. Seabury is accused of calling his wife many epithets reflecting seriously on her chastity and which would not look well in print. At the trial Mrs. Seabury and Mrs. Durand testified to these facts.

The Ferruti Estate.

The final account of Dr. J. L. Ross, as administrator of the estate of Giuseppe Ferruti was allowed in the Superior Court last Thursday. At the time the deceased died he was represented to be without money but diligent search by Attorney Geo. C. Ross resulted in securing about $2,000 which otherwise would have gone to the partners. Dr. Ross was allowed $300 as administrator's fees owing to the difficulties encountered in handling the estate. As Ferruti left no heirs the State will get the balance which amounts to $1840.

New Citizens.

Andre Jose Pereira applied to be naturalized last Tuesday. Joseph Isadore and Joseph Pacheco testified to the fact that he was entitled to citizenship and the court granted the application. He is a native of Portugal.

Frank Brown, a native of the same county, was admitted Wednesday on the testimony of John Andrade and W. J. Walker.

Manuel Prieda was admitted the same day, his witnesses being the same parties.

Two other persons were admitted the same day, namely, Barnaba Zanoni, a native of Switzerland on the testimony of John Seaman and G. H. Buck, and Samuel Christensen, a native of Denmark, on the testimony of John R. Brown and A. C. Madsen.

JAMES V. COLEMAN.

Over one Third of the Convention Solid for him.

Concerning the candidacy of Hon. Jas V. Coleman of this county for the Democratic nomination for Governor in the Examiner has the following: That Coleman has thousands of friends all over the State, but particularly in San Francisco, is evidenced by the enthusiasm that has been aroused for him. With one or two exceptions, the members of the Ironclad Club of this city will not listen to the mention of any one's name for the Governorship except that of their Post Grand Sachem, and this feeling, it is said, has spread to the many branches of this powerful organization in the State.

"James V. Coleman will be nominated on the first ballot at San Jose," said one of his ardent admirers. "I do not care to estimate how many votes he will receive from San Francisco, but he will have a fair representation, that I can say."

A Dead Chinaman.

Coroner Crowe received word last Sunday from Colma of the sudden death of a Chinaman on an Italian ranch. He deigned justice of the Peace Mattingly to hold the inquest and the latter went to Colma only to find that the Chinaman was at San Pedro. An inquest was held there Monday and it was found that the death was caused by the bursting of a blood vessel. A representative of the Six Companies of San Francisco arrived and attended to the funeral.

A GRAND BOULEVARD.

Proposed Road in the Northern Portion of This County.

At a meeting of the street committee of the Board of Supervisors of San Francisco this week, Hermann Schussler of the Spring Valley Water Company appeared in reference to the proposed extension of Market street to cross Lake Merced.

Mr. Schussler said the company, he felt sure, would oppose the crossing of even the northern spur of the lake and would not for a moment entertain the proposition to cross both arms, for fear of polluting the water.

Mr. Schussler then said that negotiations had been pending between the Spring Valley Company and Adolph Sutro which tended to serve the purpose of the proposed extension in even a better manner than that suggested by the board's order. The parties were considering the advisability of connecting the county road with Colma station, San Mateo county, by making a grand boulevard across the extreme eastern limit of the Rancho Laguna de la Merced. This boulevard is to be 120 feet wide and to be planted with trees on each side.

Market street when extended on the proposed line would cut directly across this boulevard and could be made to find its outlet there and would necessitate less bridge building and give a more feasible and prettier highway freed from the hilly slopes around Lake Honda. Mr. Schussler thought this the more practical suggestion and advised its adoption. He also said that if in course of time it became necessary that the street should cross the lake, as now proposed, the possession of the lake might by that time have passed into other hands to be used for other purposes than drinking water, and it might be made a grand resort for regattas, excursion boats and other things.

A MISSING BARBER.

Mr. J. Mills Leaves an Anxious Wife.

Mrs. R. J. Mills, at 35 Bush street, San Jose, is mourning the unexplained absence from home of her husband, Mr. Mills, who is a barber, left San Jose on May 21st and went to San Francisco for medical treatment of spinal and stomach ailments. He remained there only one day and night, however, and returning to San Jose told his wife that he had lost all his barber tools and all his pocket money in a lodging house fire in the city. On June 4th he again left home, this time to come to Redwood City, where he said he had been offered a situation as a barber. He said he would return to his wife in two weeks, but he did not do so and she has not seen him since he left home, although she has made a thorough search here and in San Francisco. She says that before departing her husband drew all his savings from the bank, and she is afraid that he may have met with foul play.

Native Daughters.

Mrs. C. S. Baker of Alta Park has been appointed District Deputy for Marin, San Francisco and San Mateo counties. Grand Treasurer, Miss Minnie Coulter, of Santa Rosa has been appointed by the Grand President member of the Visiting Board to inspect Bonita Parlor of Redwood City. Miss Addie Underhill is a member of the committee on State of the Order of the Grand Parlor.

Horse Thief Caught.

Arthur Thrush was arrested in San Francisco last week on the charge of horse stealing. He confessed to have stolen a valuable brood mare from William Corbett's San Mateo Stock Farm. Corbett says the mare is from valuable Kentucky stock and worth $1000. Thrush tried to sell the animal for $90 but the low price excited suspicions in the minds of those to whom he applied.

Mortgages.

A release of mortgage from Richard Cunningham to Leobards Valencia and Turvito Tanfaran was filed in the County Clerk's office on Wednesday.

The mortgage of Peter Iler to Richard Cunningham, 65.41 acres on County road adjoining Valencia property for $14,000 was filed in the Recorder's office Wednesday.

The satisfaction of the mortgage of Alfred J. Marcus to Ellen C. Sargent dated September 29, 1893, was filed in the Recorder's office yesterday.

If you have made up your mind to buy Hood's Sarsaparilla do not be induced to take any other. Hood's Sarsaparilla is of a peculiar medicine, possessing, by virtue of its peculiar combination, proportion and preparation, curative power superior to any other article of the kind.

The Price Hotel.

The carpenters and plumbers have nearly finished their work on the interior of the Price Hotel. The painters are now busy. The sanitary work in this building is of exceptional merit. Marble wash basins are placed in each room. Hard wood mantels and the latest improved grates ornament the parlors. Mr. and Mrs. W. Z. Price will remove to Redwood City in the course of a week. The bar-room and butcher shop will be first occupied in the new building. It will take several weeks to furnish the hotel after all the construction work is done.

COUNTY PIONEERS.

They Adopt an Appropriate Badge. New Members.

There was a good attendance at the meeting of the San Mateo County Pioneers last Saturday. Wm. Lasswell was president and George W. Fox Secretary of the meeting.

Four new members were admitted as follows: E. F. Hermann Beyer, James Casey and Andrew McCormick.

A design was adopted for the Society's official badge. It will consist of a white ribbon two and a half inches wide and ten inches long and a medallion which will be an exact representation of an old $50 slug.

Upon the ribbon will be printed a representation of a redwood tree with a pioneer standing near in the act of chopping it down, and also a half open scroll with the words "Consolidation Act." The medallion will be engraved with name of the Society, its date of organization and the date of the passage of the consolidation act organizing the County government.

It was decided to hold the annual celebration on September 7th and B. A. Rankin, G. W. Fox, J. Stalter, D. W. Sampson and Peter Doyle were appointed a committee of arrangements.

Several minor bills were passed and the meeting adjourned.

BOARD OF TRADE.

Articles Needed for Exhibition From This County.

The California State Board of Trade has issued a circular to affiliated organizations calling for materials for exhibition. It says: "The fruit and other displays on 'California on Wheels' are in need of renewal. It is hoped that as it is to be exhibited in the State of Illinois, Indiana, Ohio, Pennsylvania, Maryland, New Jersey, New York, Massachusetts, Michigan, the two Dakotas, Montana, Washington and Oregon the necessity of attending to these renewals will not be forgotten. During this trip it will exhibit at Washington, D. C., also at the St. Louis Exposition and perhaps at several State fairs. Affiliated boards should make it a point to furnish us with materials needed to keep up the degree of excellence hitherto established.

We also urge that the exhibit at our rooms needs not only new fruit but the addition of many articles within the province of every local board to furnish. A mineral display is also required. As interesting and valuable as the exhibit now is, there is no question that with a little effort on the part of each board it could be greatly improved."

The San Mateo County Exhibit practically amounts to nothing. Any articles brought or sent to this office will be immediately forwarded to the Board of Trade's headquarters.

AN AFTERNOON FIRE.

Joseph Larkin's Barn at the Five Points Burns Down.

A lively fire occurred at the Five Points late Saturday afternoon. It started apparently in one corner of the barn on the premises which M. Dubery rents from Joseph Larkin. As there was considerable loose hay in the building, the fire soon spread and the entire structure was a mass of flames. The Fire Department responded in force but too late to accomplish anything. The building was worth about $250 and was insured in the Royal Insurance Company with F. W. Glennan for $200. Inside the barn was over ninety bales of hay, a hay chopping machine, wagon pole and other articles which belonged to Mr. Dubery and were not insured. His loss will be $120.

The fire made known one fact, namely, that there ought to be a fire bell in that portion of the town. Considerable delay occurred in calling out the Department which would have been obviated had there been some means at hand for turning in an alarm. A similar condition of affairs exists on the Islands. Some means of raising an alarm should be provided at both places.

PACIFIC RAILWAY.

Their Road May Connect With the Cable Cars.

The Pacific Railway Company of Colorado, recently organized to build a railroad south from San Francisco along the coast to San Francisco, will soon select a route. The proposed route is to run through Spanishtown and Pescadero, and the directors of the company are confident that it will be the best to build from Coyote point, just east of San Mateo on the bay, or to start from a point immediately south from the Cliff House. By building from Coyote point a connection would be made at San Mateo with the Southern Pacific, while from near the Cliff House the cable-car system would be the connection of the road into the city. The people of Santa Cruz also favor the latter route.

LOVE AT FIRST SIGHT.

Mrs. Mary Finnerty's Third Husband is G. W. Kelsey.

Justice Welch was called upon to hurriedly marry a couple in the Gem Restaurant last Tuesday morning. The contracting parties were G. W. Kelsey, a carpenter employed upon the Price building, and Mary A. Finnerty, cook at the Gem Restaurant. The former had been a boarder at the restaurant for two months and the latter arrived only two weeks ago, accompanied by her little daughter Pearl, aged seven years. Mrs. Kelsey, as boarder, had full opportunity to judge of the admirable qualities and housewifely instincts of Mrs. Finnerty as evinced in her cooking, so it is not a matter of surprise that a mutual attraction developed between them. The usual formalities of proposal and acceptance were gone through with, and Wednesday was fixed as the fated day upon which the marital ceremony should take place, but unfortunately Mr. Kelsey's heart troubled him and Monday evening he had a serious attack of sickness. However, instead of postponing matters this only hastened them. Justice Welch was called in. The bachelorette who had been washing dishes dried her hands to clasp that of her prospective husband, while Justice Welch took advantage of the legal powers conferred upon him to pronounce them man and wife. Mr. Kelsey hails from Ohio and is thirty-eight years of age. His wife is twenty-nine years old and has been divorced twice, this being her third husband. Justice Welch says he would rather send a man to jail for sixty days than marry a couple.

LONDON'S NEW TOWER.

It is to be Just Twice as High as the Eiffel Structure.

When the Eiffel Tower, at the Paris Exposition, was demonstrated to an immense success, both physically and financially, London began to talk about building a rival structure, 2,000 feet high, and then New York, with characteristic emulation, began to talk of building one 3,000 feet high. The New York project ended in talk, which was also characteristic, but the London scheme is making progress and the tower is in a fair way to be built.

It is under the management of Sir Edward Watkin, who is famous as the projector of a tunnel under the English Channel, which his bold compatriots are afraid to build, lest it might admit a foreign foe, and his energy is sufficient to guarantee that the tower will be erected as soon as possible. It is to stand on the Thames embankment, in a fashionable part of London, and as it is to be twice as high as the Eiffel Tower, it is, of course, expected to be twice as great an attraction.

There is no doubt that it will be, for not because of its height, then, because of its unique character. It can scarcely fail to be something novel and curious in the way of architecture, for no less than 248 architects and engineers are preparing designs for it, and it will be very singular if something new and extraordinary shall not be evolved from so great a number of brains trained in the devising of new forms and combinations.

There are, however, great difficulties in the way of realization. The necessities of the situation forbid fantastic architecture and elaborate ornamentation. When M. Eiffel built his tower he found himself restricted to the simplest of all shapes—a light structure of open iron work, which the wind could blow through without overturning, and which would not fall down of its own weight. Still, the builders of the Tower of Babel had a radically different design, and were getting on very well with it when stopped by circumstances over which they had no control; so perhaps the 248 architects will evolve a design quite as feasible as M. Eiffel's and a great deal prettier.

The London towers is a project of nothing in particular. It is simply a business speculation, like a cyclorama or a new theater. There are enough sight-seers in London every day to make it probable if it becomes a popular fad, and as the idea has not yet lost its novelty there seems to be no good reason why a visit to London hereafter should be considered complete without a visit to the Wankin Tower—Philadelphia Inquirer.

GLADSTONE ON NOVELS.

The Grand Old Man's Sensible Opinion on Religious Romance.

Mr. Gladstone has just written an article which he penned after reading "Ellen Middleton," a novel written in 1844, and republished a few years ago, by the late Georgiana Fullerton.

Mr. Gladstone, prefacing his account of the work, declares that it is seldom that readers have the good fortune to find the true preacher in the guise of a novelist, as well as with the vestments of the female sex. "Too truly it may be said of many novels of the day that, while they have escaped from the rudeness and grossness of earlier times, they have been by an artificial and unhealthy process—they have distanced the poison, not expelled it; they are waited upon by others; and their uncleanliness remains within, because they are still intended to stimulate appetite, and not to minister food. In another class of romance, where religion is more copiously infused and more distinctly exhibited, the combination is generally inharmonious and repulsive.

"Indeed," the right honorable gentleman affirms, "we fear that many fictions of the class termed religious may have produced a revulsive effect."

The author of "Ellen Middleton" has assailed that which constitutes, as we are persuaded, the master delusion of our own time and country, and in the way of parable, and by awful example has shown us how they that would avoid the detection of the moral law within them must struggle with their infirmities by the painful acts and accessories of repentance, and how, if we fall short of this by dallying with them, we nurse them into giants for our own misery and destruction.

Mr. Gladstone then briefly relates a part of the story of Ellen Middleton, and proceeding with his analysis and moralizing upon the case, concludes:

"Religion of late years has been driven back in great part from that acknowledged position of prominence and authorized power which it once used to occupy in ordinary life; although not absolutely relegated into obscure minor positions and rustic villages, yet it covers and skulks in society, and manifests not itself until, by some careful application of the touchstone, it has ascertained in what quarters sympathy exists. Or else, in minds more fearless, or less delicate, it projects upon the surface, not in its natural effluence, but according to some harsh and crude form, with effort and with assumption."—N. Y. Herald.

A Saving Box for Girls.

It need not be a box at all; it may be a silk bag, or a well-worn ink-stand, or it may be a hatbox. But have it. Then, when the day is done and the purse is being looked over, count out the pennies and pence, and place them in the saving box. My dear girl, it is your independence. The pennies, half-dimes and dimes count up, and then, when you want to surprise mother with a birthday gift, when you want to go on a frolic, or when you would like to have a good photograph, a really good one to give somebody who is very fond of you, the money saved is then brought forth. Just try going without a few things—a cake now and then, some candies, or the very latest in collars, and dedicate the dimes to the box. You will be amazed to see how they accumulate. And best of all, the saving habit will come to you. That does not mean lack of generosity, it means thought for the future. Some masculine philosopher said women only began to save money when they had passed thirty, but if that is true, it is because the savings box idea was not taught from youth.—N. Y. Examiner.

How rapidly the death rate among the old soldiers is increasing is shown by the reports now being received at the office of Col. Gray, adjutant of the department of Wisconsin, G. A. R. Thus far 160 out of 263 posts have reported, and the death list numbers 124, whereas the total number of deaths reported by Wisconsin posts last year was 129. This is a death rate of 11 per 1,000, but if the 100 posts yet to be heard from show the same proportionate mortality as those that have already reported the rate for 1889 will be far from 20 per 1,000.—Chicago Ledger.

THE MONKS OF OKA.

An Order of Medieval Priests in the Heart of Canada.

A few years ago the provincial Government was induced to grant to a band of priests newly arrived a lot of land on the banks of the Ottawa near its junction with the St. Lawrence, and there they established themselves as the Canadian headquarters of the Trappist order in the Monastery of Oka. They at once devoted themselves to the cultivation of the soil and to teaching the surrounding farmers the methods of scientific agriculture. They erected altars, introduced the use of artificial fertilizers, and new methods in dairying and stock raising, till now the district of Oka has become one of the best agricultural sections in the province.

The story of their lives reads like a chapter from the annals of the early church. The monks rise at one o'clock every morning, and after repeating the office of the Virgin they arrange their cells, which measure five by six feet, and contain a wooden bedstead, with a hard straw mattress and pillow. A discipline and a crucifix complete the furniture. Then they have an hour for meditation, after which the chapter takes place. All repair to the chapter room and each in turn publicly confesses his willful and other faults against the rule, and if any one should have happened to notice a fault in the penitent he will accuse him of it aloud, and if it is acknowledged a penance is imposed which consists of flagellation or some other bodily mortification. After the rules are explained, the matins are sung, and finally all attend the daily high mass at eight o'clock.

Then they proceeded to work, at this season cutting down trees in the forest and sawing them into cordwood. This continues till two o'clock in the afternoon, when they all repair to the monastery to examine their consciences, and at three they take their daily meal of the day. A tin plate, wooden fork and spoon, and a pocket knife constitute the table appliances. Each monk receives a plate of soup made of vegetables and water and a plate of boiled rice. On Christmas day they receive two meals and during Lent the meal is taken at four o'clock.

After this somewhat frugal meal work is resumed, and is only interrupted for the singing of the office. The monks never speak, excepting as they pass each other, when they exclaim "Memento mori"—remember death—and this they repeat in unison around a half-dug grave.

Visitors are welcomed, and many make the monastery a regular retreat, for whose accommodation the monks are now about to erect a new building.

GOBELIN TAPESTRY.

The Origin of a Profitable Industry and of a Popular Word.

Here is a piece of real Gobelin tapestry. Look well at it, for it isn't often seen. A good deal that is guaranteed to be Gobelin is sold in this country, but very little of it is real; and, by the way, these tapestries have a wonderful history. Of course, they have played an important part in the furnishing of kings' and princes' palaces, but aside from that they enriched the language by the addition of one word. A Flemish painter named Gluck found a process for dyeing a beautiful and very peculiar scarlet, and sold it to Gilles Gobelin, who built a factory in France, where he made tapestries and quilts of a peculiar color. Every body looked on him as a crank, and his factory was always spoken of as "Gobelin's folly," but he made a go of it and his success was so great that those superstitious old folks supposed he was aided by the devil; and there was a story they used to tell about him that shows what an awful era that must have been to live in. They said that Gobelin had a compact with the devil, and another case of the devil and Tom Walker, but it did not end the same way. The devil was supposed to have taught him the art of dyeing scarlet on condition that at a certain time the devil was to have him. When the time was up the devil came after him, and caught him going through a yard at night with a little piece of lighted candle in his hand. Gobelin begged for time, but the devil wouldn't let him have it. At last Gobelin requested his satanic majesty to wait until the bit of candle in his hand burned out and the devil consented. The wily old Gobelin, as soon as he got this concession, threw the candle into the well and pitched the devil in after it. The devil was very angry, but before he could get out Gobelin gathered a guard of enthusiastic about him and secured himself from any further attacks. Now, for the new word. From this story came the new word "gobelin," a ghost or specter, and it has become one of the words of the language, but if that is its origin in the silly story that was told about the man who first made these tapestries.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

A gentleman named Knapp, the proprietor of a large manufactory, is noted for his general irascibility and fussiness of demeanor. One day he was more than usually rampant, and the underlings looked at one another in furtive disapproval. "What's the matter with Knapp?" asked one of his neighbors, in an undertone. "Oh, I don't know," was the careless reply. "Somebody's rubbed him the wrong way, I suppose."—Youth's Companion.

A case of considerable interest to men who insure their lives for the benefit of their wives was recently decided in St. Louis. The test was one which a man had taken out such a policy. His wife died and he married again, having children by both marriages. At his death a dispute arose as to who was entitled to the insurance. The decision of the court was that as the insurance had been taken out for the benefit of the first wife, her children alone were entitled to the money.

An Elephant's Venerable Age.

The journals of Ceylon have recently mentioned the death of an elephant that was well known on the island, and had been seen by several generations of Englishmen. He was called Sello, and had belonged to the last of the kings of Kandy. He was one of the hundred elephants that was taken by the English government in 1815, when the Kandyan dynasty was overthrown. At this epoch the elephant was said to be 15 years old. If this is correct, he died a natural death at the age of 30 years.—Boston Budget.

THE ASTOR'S SEVERE WAR.

There is a great deal of severe war owned in New York, though little is now sold. One of the finest severe dinner sets in the country belongs to the Astor family. It contains 300 pieces and was bought by John Jacob Astor many years ago. It cost $5,000, but connoisseurs say it would sell for $25,000 at the present time. The decoration is simple but very effective. It has a border of the rare turquoise blue shade, edged with gold. Mrs. Hicks-Lord has some very valuable severe, and so, seldom as he entertains, has Jay Gould.—New York Letter.

Newspapers in Japan.

Probably nothing better illustrates the great progress which Japan has made in the last quarter of a century than the 475 newspapers which are now published in the empire. Sixteen of these are now issued daily in Tokio. Each officer of the government is obliged to be a subscriber to the government organ "Kwampoo." In 1864 the 403 newspapers consisted of 32 political, 2 military, 116 scientific, 88 trade, 33 governmental, 21 court, 25 religious, 26 medical and 5 literary journals.—New York Tribune.

A Triturator for Grinding Drugs.

The Electrical Engineer states that a triturator for grinding drugs has been ingeniously fitted up to work by an electric motor, to save labor in chemical shops or for drug grinders. The mortar or mortars to the number required are made to revolve by the electric motor, and a very heavy porcelain pestle hangs inside, the necessary grinding being assured by the revolving of the heavy pestle by friction against the inside of the mortar.

A Weather Prophet.

Scientist—So you have followed the seas all your life! I presume you are a thorough meteorological prognosticator by this time.

Jack Tarre—A which?

"A—I mean you can easily foretell a gale can't you?"

"Easy enough, sir. When you see the captain dancin' around an yellin' out forty orders at once, you kin jest make up y'r mind that it's going ter blow."—New York Weekly.

WOMEN AND NICE.

The reason why a woman is afraid of a mouse is a profound mystery—indeed, it has never been very clearly proven that she is. But some women are constantly in such a nervous, irritable condition that the slightest thing annoys and startles them. The cause of this unfortunate state of affairs is usually some functional derangement; some disordered or painful irregularity, some derangement or peculiar weakness incident to her sex, or it may be due to inflammation, ulceration or displacement of some of the pelvic viscera, or to other organic lesions peculiar to her sex. From whichever cause it may arise, Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is a positive remedy, so certain in its curative results that its manufacturers sell it, through druggists, under a guarantee of its giving satisfaction in every case, or the money paid for it will be promptly refunded. As a soothing and strengthening medicine, it is invaluable in allaying and subduing nervous excitement, hysteria, spasms and other distressing, nervous symptoms commonly attendant upon functional and organic disease of the womb. It induces refreshing sleep and relieves mental anxiety and despondency.
